

Season 24/25 - Newsletter 15

Lots of goals in the Carabao games kept the number of correct scores predicted down in Round 14.

Bankers went missing at Brentford, despite them getting through on penalties, the draw cost many. Six had a 3-0 Arsenal Guarantee, but all but this Round's winner didn't back it up, and as it was against a Championship team it didn't carry a high tariff. The average score this round was 13.50 points, the worst was MINUS 24.23, seven players scored less than zero.

Best though was Saved By The Belle. They did back up the Arsenal 3-0 Guarantee with a couple of correct banker results, and a Spurs 2-1 win (worth almost as many points as the Arsenal banker). All went towards the 57.36 point total.

I Should Be So Lucky, were, with the non-Carabao predictions, and an Arsenal 3-0 win.

MC11 came in third, hampered a little by Villa this round, but certainly boosted by Brighton's late goal at home to Liverpool

The points for first and third placed teams helped them climb a number of places in the table.

Bachman & Robin have kept their 20 point lead at the top, but again have another different team chasing them in second place.

58 Years Of Hurt have moved up 4 places to second, above Tumbledwyer and Chips & Gravy.

As mentioned above, we saw two of the top three climb places as well, Saved By The Belle moved up 13 places, MC11 up 8.

A long way to go, with Round 15 following quickly this weekend and the chance to build on the current league points
